Public announcement

In 1988 God birthed The Kings School Linbro Park with a two-fold mandate: to establish a School for all & to preserve a Christian Ethos in it. This mandate was entrusted to the Elders of the church and over the years the different Eldership teams have guarded over it. Many others have diligently poured finances, effort, time and prayer into the school to establish and nurture it. We are grateful that God has given us such incredible partnerships to establish and preserve this school since then.

In 2014 we felt a stirring and a maturing in the school and as a team we embarked on a prayerful exploration of the future of TKSLP. Questions such as the development of infrastructure, introduction of market leading educational approaches, the profile & influence of the school and future opportunities for staff and learners, were all vital considerations. More importantly, how do we protect the heart of God for the school while balancing the need for effective and relevant education in a demanding world.

In His kindness, God has closed some doors, opened some windows for us to look through and strategically created some paths for us to follow. One of these paths led us to the Curro brand of schools and over the past 18 months we have, with great discernment, explored what a partnership could look like.

During this period, we allowed ourselves to thoroughly investigate where such partnerships have happened, i.e: The City Hill church in Hillcrest. We diligently sought to get to know our partner, but more importantly, to allow them to know who we are and the heart behind the school.

We are pleased to confirm that in Curro we have found a partner that will honour this and we have agreed to the sale of TKSLP. Some of the commitments are:

- Significant Expansion of the school's footprint in Linbro Park
- Preserving the Culture and Ethos that many have fought for
- Honouring our current staff and a commitment to their development

The future of TKSLP has always been paramount, the ethos is unique and worth exporting. We firmly believe that this partnership will protect this.

There will be change, there will be pain – but there will be a future. A better one, because God has always secured our future and directed our paths at TKSLP. We look forward to a wonderful working relationship with Mr.Currin and the staff under the Curro banner.

Sincerely,

Johan Meyer
